Whole number of scholars in town attending Summer schools in the several districts 281; whole number attending Winter schools 224; whole number of instances of tardiness, 1004; whole number of dismissals, 290,—without the return from District No. 1, Winter school.

In regard to the condition of the schools in the several districts the past year we present the following statistics, as drawn from the school registers, with such remarks as the facts seem to demand.

DISTRICT NO. 1.

Teacher, Summer term, Miss Augusta Doe. Length of school, 16 weeks; wages per month, including board, $16; whole number of scholars, 30; average attendance, 22; instances of tardiness, 140; dismissals, 47; number of visits by citizens and others, 18.

Notwithstanding the unpardonable indifference manifested by the members of the district, as indicated by the tardy marks on the register, the irregularity of attendance and the want of uniformity in text books, which have almost become chronic complaints in this school, Miss Doe, with considerable previous experience, and with a knowledge of the difficulties to be met (this being her own district), with patience, perseverance and energy, succeeded in establishing a good degree of order, securing the good feelings of her scholars and the advancement of the school beyond what the district, under the circumstances, could reasonably expect.

Winter term: Mr. John Sullivan teacher. Length, — weeks; wages, $— per month; whole number of scholars, ; average attendance, ; tardiness, ; dismissals, ; visitors,

Mr. Sullivan, with some misgivings on his own part, commenced this school without any previous experience. With an earnest desire to do his whole duty, a willingness to profit by counsel, a just appreciation of his own responsibility, he could hardly fail of success.

As this school has not closed, the report is necessarily incomplete. When last visited it was in full tide of successful operation, except its chronic diseases.

DISTRICT NO. 2.

Both terms were taught by Miss Annie E. Dow. Length—Summer, 12 weeks; Winter, 9 weeks; wages, both terms, $20 per month; scholars—Summer, 29; Winter, 24. Average—Summer, 24; Winter, 20. Tardy—Summer, 13; Winter, 10. Dismissals—Summer, 16; Winter, 18. Visitors,—Summer, 49; Winter, 26.

Miss Dow is an experienced teacher,—has made it a profession. Her aim has been perfection. Due credit should be given to the parents of this district for so far coöperating with the teacher as to keep the tardy and absent marks comparatively less than any other school in town. As the closing exercises of both terms fully verify the teacher's own remarks in her register, I can do no better than indorse them, especially that part, "under existing circumstances," and give them entire, as follows: "When I opened my school this year, it was with an earnest desire to benefit my scholars all that was within my power, and my pupils commenced their studies with the same zeal, and continued with untiring ambition until the closing up of the year. Their great desire was to excel; and I have encouraged that disposition, knowing that children need to be stimulated, and so offered them prizes and cheering words at the opening. Each scholar has been required to commit their lessons perfectly before leaving the school-room, and in no instance have deviated from that rule, thinking it not only benefiting them in that one thing, but instilling upon their minds the importance of being correct in their habits. I think that I must speak of the obedience that has prevailed to a perfect mark. No scholar has, through this year, been unmanageable, or refused to comply with all the rules of school, which is rather remarkable, under existing circumstances. Many of them made great advancement in writing, finished text-book, and passed into higher classes. They went thoroughly through almost every school-book, and seemed to understand it. The children, at times, thought it rather close confinement, but at the close remarked that they did not regret the hard study that had been required of them."

DISTRICT NO. 3.

Teacher, Summer term, Miss Nellie R. Morrill. Length, 9 weeks; wages, $14; scholars, 6; average, 5; tardy, 2; visits, 44; not absent half a day, 2.

Miss Morrill is one of our own experienced teachers, and so generally and favorably known in the profession as to need no extended notice from any one. With so small a school, nothing but her consciousness of duty could have kept up the interest manifested. Improvement good.

The Winter term was taught by Miss Lucia A. B. Holt. Length, 11 weeks; wages, $16; scholars, 19; average, 14; tardy, 10; dismissals, 2; not absent half a day, 4; visits, 28.

Miss Holt is another of our native popular teachers, and has fully sustained her former good reputation. Her order was good. On other points we will let her speak from her register, to which we fully subscribe :

" It has been my aim to go thorough as fast as we went in our studies. I do not believe in going over a great deal of ground and then not half knowing what you have been over. Most of the scholars have tried to learn all they could, with but one or two exceptions."

Alas ! that there should be a single exception, and that among the larger scholars. Can the fault always be in the teachers, year after year ? Will parents all do a parent's duty ?

This school was much increased in numbers by scholars from Allenstown during the winter term. This district, with No. 9, is a demonstration of the folly of dividing school districts.

DISTRICT NO. 4.

Teacher, Summer term, Miss Clara E. Flint. Length, 10 weeks; wages, $—; Scholars, 19; average 16; tardy, 55; dismissals, 4; not absent half a day, 3; visits, 10.

Without previous experience Miss Flint commenced this school. Passing a good examination, the impressions on the first visit to the school led to the indulgence of higher hopes than were fully realized. If teachers would have their scholars prompt they must not be tardy themselves. If the parents would have their scholars excel, they should not expect it by the partiality of the teacher. A tolerable degree of improvement was manifested at the close.

The Winter term was taught by Miss Augusta Doe. Length, 10 weeks; wages, $16; scholars, 18; average 17; tardy, 61; dismissals, 3; not absent one half day, 1; visits, 18.

At the commencement of this term Miss Doe encountered the difficulties of breaking up some pernicious and disorderly habits, especially with some of the larger scholars, which, by firmness and perseverance, was to a good degree accomplished. Others of the large scholars are worthy of praise for their respectful obedience and close attention to their studies, thereby contributing much to the maintenance of authority and the good of the school. The closing exercises were very thorough and interesting, and apparently quite satisfactory to the large number of visitors who honored the school, and also themselves by their presence.

DISTRICT NO. 5.

Teacher, Summer term, Miss Julia Doe. Length, 11 weeks; wages, beside board, $8; scholars, 27; average, 21; tardy, 205; dismissals, 31; not absent one half day, 0; visits, 12.

Miss Doe was a beginner, an excellent scholar, possessing much goodness of heart, was very desirous of success, and labored hard to accomplish her object, but a decided and steady discipline was not secured or maintained. A commendable degree of improvement was, however, made; but with more system and order the school would have been more profitable.

A little more sympathy and aid from the parents, by way of reducing this enormous amount of tardy marks, would have greatly promoted the desired object. The closing exercises were well attended by the citizens, and, interspersed with declamation and singing, well received.

Winter term, Miss M. Addie Moore, of Loudon, teacher. Length, 8 weeks; wages, including board, $16; scholars, 21; average, 18; tardy, 6; dismissals, 11; not absent one half day, 1; visits, 28.

Miss Moore was also a beginner. Succeeded in establishing very good order, and consequently was very successful in all other things pertaining to the prosperity of the school. Many of the parents and friends of the scholars and teacher manifested their interest by their presence at the close. The examination envinced a thoroughness of drill quite commendable to even a more experienced teacher.

DISTRICT NO. 6.

Summer term taught by MISS SARAH P. COOKE, of Concord. Length, 8 weeks; wages, $16; scholars, 28; average, 22; tardy, 41; dismissals, 23; not absent one half day, 2; visits, 3.

Miss Cooke passed a good examination, and when the school was visited, at the commencement of the term, the prospect was good. On account of the teacher's sickness, it was abruptly closed, without being again seen by your committee. At the commencement of the winter term the scholars seemed, by some means, to have contracted habits of disorder.

WINTER TERM. MISS S. GRACE SCRIBNER, of Raymond, teacher.

Length, 10 weeks; wages, $19; scholars, 20; average, 17; tardy, 14; not absent one half day, 3; visits, 14.

Miss Scribner commenced this school with much experience, a good degree of energy and self-devotion, and well sustained the reputation of a successful and accomplished teacher. The scholars, finding their wayward propensities "nipped in the bud," quietly yielded to wholesome laws (as all loyal citizens will), and made good, thorough improvement. The closing examination gave much satisfaction to a large number of friends present. Not least in interest among the exercises was the repeating, in concert, by the whole school, the 23d Psalm.

DISTRICT NO. 7.

Both terms were taught by Miss EMMA M. GILE, of Franklin. Length of each term, 8 weeks; wages, summer, $14; winter, $16; scholars, 16; average, 14; tardy, summer, 9; winter, 10; dismissals, summer, 2; winter, 5; not absent one half day, summer, 6; winter, 1; visits, 21.

Miss Gile is an experienced teacher, understanding her duty, and prompt in discharging it; steadily moving along in that quiet, but firm manner that resists all extraneous influences, and accomplishes its object without display. The examinations, at the close of both terms, evinced that degree of proficiency by the pupils, in all the branches pursued, as a thorough drilling by a faithful teacher can alone impart. The scholars also deserve much praise for the interest they manifested. The teacher remarks, in her register, "Never have I had a more easily governed school than in this district, especially the last term. For the most part all went on quietly. Every teacher needs the co-operation of the parents to secure success in the school-room. I find there is a want of interest on the part of the parents; they seem to be rather behind. A change of books and a new black-board would be a great addition in this district, but to talk of these things is utterly useless." Will the good people of this district take this gentle hint, and, while about it, remodel the interior of their school-house?

DISTRICT NO. 8.

ADVANCED DEPARTMENT.

Teacher, summer term, MISS ZELDA MORGAN. Length, 15 weeks; wages, $18; scholars, 41; average, 26; tardy, 68; dismissals, 52; not absent one half day, 1; visits, 51.

Miss Morgan is a good, practical teacher, with order well developed; has labored faithfully, and, if the school had faults, it was not with the teacher. She very truly remarks, in her register, "Irregularity of attendance of some of the scholars prevented that advancement in their studies that they otherwise would have attained. The school suffered from having quite a number of the scholars leave.

Some went into the factory, others moved out of the district, and several were obliged to leave on account of ill health."

The winter term was kept by MR. JOHN T. WHITEHOUSE. Length, 13 weeks; wages, $34; scholars, 38; average, 29; tardy, 129; dismissals, 23; not absent one half day, 1; visits, 24.

This was Mr. W.'s first effort in teaching. Eminently qualified, mentally and morally; with an earnest desire to do his duty for the good of the school; with a firm, but gentlemanly bearing, he could not fail to very strongly impress his scholars with the importance of doing right. The order in school was good, but perhaps an anxiety to do too much interfered, to some extent, with thoroughness.

This school, with superior advantages to any other in town, is far behind, even itself, seven years ago. And where lies the cause? Not with the teacher, surely; but look at the register, with from 38 to 41 scholars. An average attendance of only 26, and out of this 152 instances of tardiness and dismissals; constant attendance, only one, and not even a solitary visit by a parent, during the entire term. Under these embarrassing-circumstances the improvement in both terms was greater than ought to be expected.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

The first half of the summer term was kept by MISS ABBY M. GAULT, of Concord, and the remainder of the term by MISS SARAH J. WHITEHOUSE. Length, 15 weeks; wages, $18; scholars, 73; average, 41; tardy, 118; dismissals, 13; visits, 42.

This is decidedly the most difficult school in town to manage with success. 73 scholars, mostly from 4 to 8 years of age, gathered in from the streets in Suncook. Miss Gault has had her first experience as a teacher here, and with much perseverance and discretion, and a tact for interesting, diverting, governing and instructing children, was eminently successful. Her health failing, she was obliged to leave the school in the midst of her usefulness.

Very fortunate for the district, and especially the scholars, the services of Miss Whitehouse were secured to finish the term. With considerable previous experience in this school, and that peculiar ability which it demands, she kept up the interest and good order already established, and the closing exercises of the various classes, both in concert and singly, interspersed with gymnastic and rhetorical exercises, singing, &c., rendered it highly pleasing to all present.

The winter term was taught by MISS ZELDA MORGAN. Length, 13 weeks; wages, $22; scholars, 55; tardiness, 22; dismissals, 20; not absent one half day, 2; visits, 42.

With her devotion to her work, her business like habits and fidelity, Miss Morgan succeeded in maintaining the favorable condition of the summer term, and steadily advancing the interest of the school.

DISTRICT NO. 9.

Both terms were under the instruction of MISS MARTHA A. KENNEDY. Length, 10 weeks, each term; wages, $12; scholars, 13; summer; 14 winter; average, summer, 11; winter, 9½; tardy, summer, 24; winter, 34; dismissals, summer, 10; winter, 13; visits, summer, 9; winter, 13; not absent half a day, summer, 2; winter, 1.

This was Miss Kennedy's first school. With good scholarship and an honest purpose of heart, she labored zealously to succeed, but with so small a school, with but little interest manifested by any portion of the district, and, in some instances, the scholars educated to disobedience at home, and encouraged in it at school, what can we expect of the teacher? With a little more firmness and decision, and less fear of displeasing scholars or parents, and a little more thoroughness in recitations, the interest of the school might have been better subserved. The closing examinations were, however, tolerably good. If faults existed, they were more to be attributed to other parties than the teacher.

UNION DISTRICT.

This district is included in No. 22, in Concord. There has been no return of the scholars residing in this town.

Text-books. With a view of more uniformity, and also to keep up with the times, we recommend Cornell's series of Geographies, Brown's or Quackenbos' Grammar, Quackenbos' History of the United States, both as reading-book and recitation standard-readers; arithmetics (Greenleaf's and Colburn's), as now in use.

Fellow-Citizens: In calling your attention to the condition of our schools for the year now ending, we would earnestly commend their claims, being as much superior to all others as mind is to matter, to your "continued and increased regard." "It is man, it is mind, it is intelligent spirit, that gives to this grand theater of the material universe all its substantial use and worth; all its real glory." Greater, then, than all other favors conferred upon us by the kind and overruling hand of Providence, is the human intellect; and in proportion as our mental faculties are cultivated and improved do we enhance the value of all other blessings. But it not unfrequently happens that man, perhaps from the fact that he receives these gifts in a crude state, becomes unmindful of his obligations to his Maker; arrogates to himself all the honor, assumes to be the superior, and even denies to his fellow-men that which

"There is naught on earth so sacred,
—the right to be a man."

That we are obliged to improve on the talent given, is in itself one of the greatest blessings. Our mental faculties can only be improved by exercise, and we only exercise them as necessity demands. The demand and compliance are the drawing out of those innate, latent faculties, which constitute a "free moral agent," elevates humanity, or makes the man, and enables him properly to appreciate his relation to his Maker, and his duty to his fellow-beings.

Living, as we do, under that form of government which derives all its power from the consent of the governed, it, as a matter of course, follows, that its "chief corner stone" is the integrity, virtue and intelligence of the people. If we ever fail to maintain our cherished political and religious institutions, it will simply be from lack of these principles. Ambitious, aspiring and unprincipled men, or corrupt designing party leaders, under the cloak of a time-honored name, may lead us to the very verge of ruin, and then our only safety lies in the enlightened, christian patriotism of the masses. To secure this, two things prominently present themselves, and demand our earnest co-operation and support, namely: The christian pulpit and the common schools. These, though differing in origin and in their relations to each other, should act in harmony, and, in connection with the well regulated domestic circle, constitute their full share of influence in the mental and moral education of the young. Parents and friends of the rising generation, with us lies this responsibility. Should these things be?

Feeling that I can in no way better point out some of the duties of parents than my predecessors have done, I shall venture to quote, to some extent, from them: Report 1861. "Parents should bear in mind that they have much to do with the character and success of our schools. However nobly the teacher may labor, there may be serious draw-backs to his success. For instance, there may be strife and divisions in the district, finding fault without cause, parents speaking against the teacher in the presence of their children, or being negligent or indifferent about sending them regularly and in season, causing, by their tardiness and frequent absences, serious interruptions to the progress of the school." "It would greatly facilitate the study of geography, and also history, were there a globe, as well as outline maps, in all our schools."

Report 1862. "Inconstant attendance, tardiness and dismissals, before the close of school, are in some districts the most formidable barriers to full success." "The teacher needs all the help that can be brought to his aid. Convenient school-rooms, well warmed and ventilated, a full supply of the right kind of books, apparatus, maps, charts, &c., and, above all, the sympathy and co-operation of the parents, guardians and friends of his charge."

Report 1863. "The business of an education is of a tri-party nature. Teachers, parents and pupils are the joint partners in the work; and while something is to be done by each party individually, nothing short of the harmonious, cheerful co-operation of all can secure the richest and fullest blessings which the object under consideration is intended to impart."

Report 1864 : "If they (the parents) are dissatisfied with the teacher, let them go to him with their complaints, and not murmur before their children. The hearts of the parents ought to be in the work as well as the teacher, encouraging their children to learn, aiding them and asking them questions about their lessons, thus continually increasing their interest in school."

Now, with all these premonitions and admonitions, what is the result? 1004 instances of tardiness, 290 dismissals, and probably not, on an average through town, three visits, by parents of the scholars, to a school the past year; a lack in the supply and uniformity of text books, and only three districts have either mural maps, charts, or globes. With these facts before us, this manifest indifference to former reports, may we not ask with propriety, "Will it pay" to make a report?

Have the people of this town, have the parents of the three hundred children attending our schools, interest enough in the system to even read it, or to be influenced by it to any practical extent? If so, judging from what we have already shown, it must be something new; if it is not so, then we may well distrust our own ability to awaken that interest.

Now we do not suppose there are a dozen persons in town, especially parents, that would allow us to say they are indifferent to these things; but, my friends, how do you manifest your zeal in this cause? By keeping your scholars from the district schools and sending them to what you think a higher institution, from some supposed superiority in your calling or profession, and thereby virtually withholding your countenance and encouragement from this great bulwark of the nation? by allowing your scholars to be an hour too late in the morning? by indulging them in the habit of being dismissed, unnecessarily, before the close of school? by irregularity of attendance, for some slight pretext, or inconvenience at home? thus not only losing so much time themselves, but disturbing the school and distracting the arrangements of the teacher, and forming those pernicious habits of slothfulness, want of punctuality and idleness, which are the bane of society, and a lasting curse to the possessors themselves; fitting them in turn to become the heads of like disorderly households, in which to re-enact like scenes. Or by neglecting to visit your schools, and thus learn from personal observation the merits or demerits of the teacher, and, by your presence, stimulate and encourage your children in their labors; or by neglecting to furnish the necessary appurtenances of the school-room; or, as in some instances is the case, to even give them a comfortable, convenient, and pleasant school-house.

Is your interest manifested by allowing party or personal prejudices or neighborhood quarrels to influence you and in unguarded moments to speak disparagingly or disrespectfully of the teacher or the school, in the presence of your children? Or, by encouraging or permitting them to absent themselves from the closing exercises, with a view to mar the examination, and then mortify the teacher? Or even to plunge to so low a depth of degradation as to instigate or execute revolting acts of nuisance in the school-room, and thus, by precept and example, fit your children to become the candidates for stronger walls than the school-house affords.

If these things are not so, then report is not correct. If they are so, then the remedy lies in our own hands; and, possessing the requisite ability, shall we not immediately correct them? In all charity let us believe, then, that it is only necessary to fully and truly present the condition of our schools (and some of the perhaps thoughtless errors and the negligence of the parents) in such a light as to command attention, as to soon see the remedy applied.

With all the disadvantages that we have labored under for years, according to our annual reports, still we may feel justly proud of the fact that we have, with few exceptions (and these might have been very acceptably filled at home), furnished our own teachers the past season; and that they manifested that ability, zeal and fidelity in the work, which demonstrates the fact that we have the native talent, and, with that encouragement which their high calling and character deserves, would be enabled to bring our schools to such a standard as would truly astonish the most sanguine friends of education. Shall we not then lay aside all prejudices, all acrimony, all that superlative independence of feeling which has or may keep us from the work, and, with united hearts and hands, make our district schools the pride and glory of the age.

JOHN M. KIMBALL, S. S. Committee.
